

JUDGE WARNS THOSE WHO COME INTO BUCKS COUNTY TO ERECT MOONSHINE WHISKEY PLANTS; SENTENCE EIGHT

Judge Sam'l E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, Substituting for Judge Keller, Tells Them That Bucks County Residents Do Not Approve Their Action—Eight Are Also Fined

DOYLESTOWN, June 4—Philadelphians and Jerseyites who thought it would be profitable to come to Bucks county to erect moonshine whiskey plants got a dose of Bucks county justice handed out by Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, yesterday in the criminal court.

It was the last word for the present criminal term disposed of by Judge Shull who has been substituting for President Judge Hiram H. Keller, who is recuperating from a recent operation.

Eight defendants were sentenced to the Bucks County Prison and fined, while eight others were either placed on probation, found not guilty or pleaded guilty and sentence suspended.

Both cases were tried during the present term. One case involved ten defendants arrested in a raid on a 1000-gallon still and elaborate moonshine plant in Springfield township, near Coopersburg, on the morning of February 16, this year, and the other a raid on a farm in Dolington on March 9 where a 1000-gallon still was seized on the property of Israel Meltzer, 48, well known cattle dealer.

Agents of the State Liquor Control Board and State Police conducted both raids that cut off a flow of more than 2000 gallons of liquor daily that was being shipped out of Bucks county by what police describe as a very large syndicate operated in several eastern states.

"Bucks county people cannot understand why Philadelphians and Jerseyites pick out Bucks county as a safe place to manufacture liquor illegally," Judge Shull remarked yesterday. "They do not approve of it in Bucks and neither does the Court and we are going to place our stamp of disapproval of the illicit practice. If you want to manufacture moonshine whiskey stay in Philadelphia or New Jersey where you belong; don't try Bucks county if you want to stay out of jail."

The Springfield township plant was seized on the farm of Frank Timmer, 61, of near Coopersburg, who entered a plea of nolo contendere and who was found not guilty by Judge Shull and discharged.

"Although you are not beyond criticism, there is not enough evidence to hold you criminally," Judge Shull remarked. "But this should be a lesson to you to keep away from this type of person."

Timmer testified that he had rented a wood shed on his farm for $6 a month to be used as a mechanical shop of some kind, and that after he found out that whiskey was being made there he told the operators three times to stop. He said he never reported it because he was afraid. Timmer was called as a Commonwealth witness and testified in detail to assist in the conviction of others implicated.

Louis Coleman Kaplan, 32, of 1643 Weidner Place, Philadelphia, who changed his plea to guilty after first going to trial before a jury, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1 and costs and serve 6 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison. Coleman rented the woodshed from Farmer Timmer. Kaplan is under indictment in the United States Court on a charge growing out of the same raid on the Timmer farm.

Frank Prackzo, 17, of 1255 Ford St., Bethlehem, who pleaded guilty to being at the plant when the raid was made, was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to serve 1 month to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

John Sofka, 17, of Hellertown, was found not guilty by a jury on a verdict directed by the Court.

Gene Selavi, 32, of 354 Division St., Trenton, who pleaded guilty to being a worker at the plant, was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to 6 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

Frank Guzzi, 28, 4656 Worth street, Philadelphia, who pleaded guilty to be a worker at the plant was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for three years after the Prison Court had been informed by the Prison physician that Guzzi has an advanced case of tuberculosis and needs immediate hospital care.

Mike Szabare, 19, of Durham township, who pleaded nolo contendere and was a Commonwealth witness, was found not guilty by Judge Shull and discharged. Szabare is the boy who last week charged in a criminal court case that two men kidnapped him and held him prisoner for four hours in an effort to make him tell them where 65 cans of stolen liquor was located. Szabare testified yesterday that he took Coleman Kaplan and others to the Timmer farm the day that they saw about renting the place.

Two well known Doylestown real estate agents, Louis Schwartz and his son, Alexander, were acquitted upon direction of the Court after the Commonwealth had asked leave to submit the bill because of insufficient evidence to sustain a conviction.

All of the ten defendants were indicted by the Grand Jury of Bucks county 2 weeks ago on a charge of unlawful manufacture of alcoholic liquid. Six other defendants arrested in a raid on the farm of Israel Meltzer in Dolington, were before the Court yesterday. Two of them had been convicted of conspiracy to manufacture alcohol and alcoholic liquid, but withdrew their motions for new trials. Others entered pleas of guilty, and one was acquitted upon direction of the court.

Mattie Glickstein, 31, of 510 Winston street, Haverford, operator of a dry-cleaning business, was pictured by Judge Shull as "the leader" in the still operation on the Meltzer farm. He admitted being arrested 13 times before in Philadelphia on various charges, two of them being liquor charges. Judge Shull sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 and costs and serve one to three years in the Bucks County Prison.

"You have been quite a regular visitor before the magistrates and judges of Philadelphia county," Judge Shull said to Mattie Glickstein. "This Court is of the opinion that the still belonged to you and that you operated it as the boss. Bucks county has been annoyed for some time by outside bootleggers and usually by some one from Philadelphia or New Jersey."

Mattie Glickstein was arrested the morning of the raid. Several hours after the officers arrived there he pulled in the lane with a truck carrying a bag of corks.

Israel Meltzer, who told the jury and Court that he did not know the still was being operated although it was in an unoccupied portion of his own home, withdrew his motion for a new trial. He was sentenced by Judge Shull to pay a fine of $500 and costs and serve 6 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

"To think that you did not know the still was being operated in your own home after you rented the place to someone you said you did not know is too silly to discuss," Judge Shull remarked. "You have been arrested before the records show."

Harry Glickstein, 76, alias Sitwerg, father of Mattie, pleaded guilty to be a worker at the plant on the Meltzer farm. He told the Court that he had never been arrested before, but changed his story when the Court informed him that court records showed that he had been arrested five times. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $1 and costs and serve 6 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

Samuel Glickstein, a brother of Mattie, was acquitted by direction of the court.

Benny Campbell, 22, colored, of 620 Dudley street, Philadelphia, and his brother, Henry, 24, pleaded guilty to being workers at the plant on the Meltzer farm. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $1 and costs and serve 4 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison.

Al Bauer Speaker At Joint Service Club Session

Bristol's service clubs, the Rotary and Exchange, were addressed last evening in the Elks' Home by Al Bauer, former Bristol Canoe Club champion, and a member of the coaching staff of the United States Olympic Canoe Team in Berlin in 1936. The Exchange Club was in charge of the program for the joint meeting, which was well attended.

Mr. Bauer gave a very complete picture of the activities of the athletes of the different countries that were represented. He told of the methods of training, of the housing quarters, and of the beautiful and permanent stadiums erected for the Olympic Games in Berlin.

Photographs of many of the Olympic scenes were shown by Mr. Bauer as well as a number of snapshots that he took himself. Bauer termed the games of the finest exhibitions of international competitive sportsmen that he had ever hoped to witness. The hospitality extended the United States athletes was beyond reproach, and every effort was taken by the Germans to make every foreign representative feel at home.

Speaking of the results of the canoe events Mr. Bauer said that the United States did well by placing fifth in these events. He explained that form was not emphasized, and that different types of canoes were used, thus making it somewhat harder for the Americans to become accustomed to the particular method of canoeing employed in the Berlin Olympic Games.

HIGH SCHOOL NINE WINS OVER NEW HOPE, 4 TO 2

"Bill" Gallagher Hurls Fine Game and Baffles Opponents

STRIKES OUT 10 BATTERS

By Louis Tomlinson

Bristol High got off to a good start in their battle with New Hope for the baseball championship of Bucks County, when they upset the Upcountyites, 4-2, here yesterday.

The decision was gained mainly through the superb hurling of Bill Gallagher, who had the visitors eating out of his hand for the most of the afternoon. He let the Upper County champions down with five hits and continually had them popping up or striking out. No less than ten opposing batters went down on strikeouts before the slants of Gallagher. He also hit two batters and walked three.

Gallagher was opposed on the hill by Carlen Kooker who also turned in a neat job in allowing only seven hits, fanning four, and passing only one batter. Most of the locals' hits were of the scratch variety or pop flies. Kooker deserved a better fate but Gallagher shaded him slightly and deserved to win.

The hitting of the Cardinals' Kalencki, who garnered six of the seven hits, scored three runs, and drove in two others, were the big guns in the Cards' offensive attack against Kooker. Phil Wood with two hits in three trips and a walk led the visitors at the plate.

New Hope opened with a single tally in the first frame on a single by Wood and C. Kooker's triple after both James Flood and McDonnell had fanned. Howard Evans ended the inning by also whiffing before the slants of Gallagher.

Bristol retaliated in their turn with two, however, to take a 2-1 lead. With two out, Van Lenten tripled to right, and scored a moment later on Baurath's hit to short. Baurath stole second, took third on Evans' wild throw and scored on Kalencki's infield hit.

Gallagher got into a little difficulty in the third by loading the bases with only one out, but the best New Hope could get out of it was their final run that tied the score. With one out, James Flood singled, McDonnell walked, Wood singled to lead the bases, then C. Kooker was hit with a pitched ball, forcing in the tying run. Evans

BRISTOL SENIORS MAKE MERRY WHEN CLASS NITE OCCURS

"Stages in the Life of Man" Shows Advance From Birth to Marriage

AWARDS ARE MADE

George Brown Receives The Mothers' Ass'n Prize For An Essay

Merrymaking was the keynote of the class night exercises last evening, when 90 young women and young men, who will receive diplomas on Tuesday next, participated in an original and unique program at Bristol high school. Humor held sway on this occasion, and class members proved their good sportsmanship by enjoying with the large audience the point of the jokes aimed at the individual seniors.

The main presentation of the evening program was "Stages in the Life of Man," the script for which was written by Carmen Mignoni. Woven into the four main acts were songs by the graduates, who had their places on the platform.

Another item of the evening exercises was the presentation of awards by Mrs. David Neill, president, on behalf of the Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools.

The prize of $10 for the best essay by a member of the senior class, was received by George Brown. Mrs. Neill also presented pins to the seniors who have served on the staff of "The Rambler," the high school paper. Recipients of such were: Rose Veitch, Evelyn Greenwood, Dora Waldron, Charlotte Rathke, Roy Hatcher, Louis Tomlinson, Margaret McManus, Berenice Bruner, Miriam Schiffer, Carmen Mignoni.

"Stages in the Life of Man" started out in a most hilarious manner, and the audience was kept in gales of laughter as the acts unfolded. The setting for the first "stage" was in the maternity ward of a hospital, two of the expectant "fathers" impatiently waiting the arrival of news, and being completely overcome by the announcement that one was the father of 12 boys, the other the parent of 12 girls. With a rush the "babies," in prescribed infant attire of bonnets, bibs, etc., made their appearance to greet their "dads."

The second act depicted "Childhood" with the girls and boys seen participating in childish games in the yard outside a little red schoolhouse. Act three had as its setting the Bristol high school auditorium, a senior class meeting being held, with President Chester Bair in charge. During this scene the following numbers were given: Class history, written by Anna Hoffman, Louis Tomlinson and Muriel Sheldon, with Miss Hoffman reading the same; last will and testament, written by Frances Shelley and Irvin N. Hoffman, the former giving the numerous paragraphs; class poem, written by Dora

OUR TIME 54 YEARS OLD

Persons who rave and rant against Daylight Saving Time had their prototype 54 years ago when the invention of Standard Time stirred up more righteous indignation and resistance to change than "fast time" does in the general store. Those who find life under Daylight Saving Time both intolerable and sacrilegious either were not living prior to November 18, 1883, or have forgotten the "good old days" of "sun" or "local time."

Standard Time with its one-hour time belts dividing the United States into four different time zones—Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific—is only 54 years old. Before Standard Time there were more than 50 standards of time used in the United States and Canada. "Sun" or "local" time and "railroad" time often were different in the same community. Traveling by the watch was the next to impossible thing because almost no two cities had the same time.

Next to the calendar and the accurate time-piece the greatest contribution in this field is Standard Time. It is difficult to see how this complex civilization could be possible without it. Rapid transportation could not.

William Frederick Allen, editor of "The Official Guide of the Railways," was the author of the system, which congress made law on March 13, 1883, after a General Time Convention at St. Louis had approved it.

Oddly enough the same criticisms and objections were directed against Standard Time in 1883 as are now directed against Daylight Saving Time. It took years for some people to become accustomed to getting their time from the Naval Observatory at Washington instead of from the old-fashioned "time ball" or from the sun.

MEMORY STILL SERVES

Old wills used to begin "I, John Smith, being of sound and disposing mind, memory and understanding, do make, publish and declare," etc. Nowadays the faculties are omitted. Doubtless they are assumed to be intact. Yet there is something symbolic about this passing of memory from one of the most solemn pages in the book of a man's life. It has fallen perceptibly from its high estate.

Memory training no longer plays the part in the school curriculum it used to do. The older generation can look wistfully back to the days when boys and girls had to learn a quotation a day, and labored over that skeleton of history—in more senses than one—the tables of kings and queens and battles. Minds are still stored with waifs and strays from that period. The tendrils of memory cling to them through the years, long after their roles in history have faded into the fog.

New principles have been introduced into the processes of education. Reason was enthroned and later "self-expression." It is argued that any person can memorize but thinking requires brains.

But on what meat does the reason in this work-a-day world feed, if not on the things remembered? A good memory lightens almost every labor and in some fields of human endeavor it is the difference between success and failure. And memorizing is the best builder of memories. The new in education is not necessarily an improvement on the old.

Maybe they are called grass widows because grass makes hay.

The famous William Heyer of Holland and his wonder horses; the celebrated Magyars, Europe's largest and most thrilling somersaulting troupe; the great Aloys, sensational aerial upside down glider and flier; the Lu-Lolita family of aerial thrillers; the Maysy-Brach troupe of lofty unicycle acrobats; the Qualteros, airplane sensationalists; the Cleveres, acrobatic whirlwinds—these are but a few of the top flight new acts from abroad. The Nattios, with Nio, only girl somersaulter on the tight wire; the Yacopis, The Uyenos, the Maschinios, the Yom Kams, the Cannes-trellis, the Walkmrs, the Antaleks, and the Torrence-Dolores are European stellar groups, as are the Waldenias, the Loyal-Repenskis, the Rieffenachs, the Walters, Mlle. Gillette and the great Rudy Rudyoff.

The Concellos, the Comets, the Randalls, the Rooneys, the Belmonts, the Melbournes, the Florettas and the Palmoros head the great aerial displays. There are 800 performers in the five rings, on the two stages, in the air and on the quarter mile hippodrome track as the 1937 program unfolds.

The mighty combined circus will arrive on four long trains of 100 double length, steel railroad cars, carrying 1600 people, 50 elephants, 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses.

CHAPTER XXVII

The narrow escape from drowning of the son of one of Riverport's leading citizens was a nine days' wonder in the town and indeed in the county. Even the downstate papers copied the item. Millie, very ill from shock and in the hospital, came in for her share of sensational reporting and Jonathan's and Rose's part in the rescue—"house guests of Miss Sally Sutton on the famous Sutton Island"—was well played up.

Rose, and Jonathan too, would have liked nothing better than to forget the whole business. It seemed to Rose that that trip back to the Island was the longest she had ever undertaken. When they reached there Sally was down at the dock with the house servants and even her mother appeared, literally wringing her hands and, for once, jarred out of her lethargy.

Millie was taken to the house where Jonathan worked over her until the men returned from the mainland with the bigger boat. By then the storm had cleared, as suddenly as it had come. The river flowed steadily toward the Gulf and the sea, dimpled, blue, impertinently placid. Only the broken branches of trees, the drenched soil and Millie, crying ceaselessly in the big bedroom in the Sutton house, remained to remind them that there had been a storm.

"She's all right," Jonathan told Rose, coming out of the room and leaving the youngster in charge of an efficient maid, "just shock, and, of course, bruises. But the bones are absolute quiet... the hospital would be better than her home at present. I think I'll take her there."

"Her parents must be told at once."

"They've a 'phone, haven't they? I'll talk to them. Perhaps you'd better drive up and see them," said Jonathan, "and try to explain... as much as is discreet," he added, frowning.

"No. Tell them to go to the hospital at once," advised Rose, "and you'll bring Millie... I'll go along with you."

"O.K. Good girl," he said briefly, and put his hand on hers. For a second they remained outside still in the wide corridor of the house. They were alone; they could hear Millie moaning faintly and the maid speaking softly to her; they could hear Sally talking to her mother below stairs; they heard Larry's voice upraised and querulous. He had demanded and received a stiff drink, and dry clothing and was downstairs with Sally and her mother.

"You must change your clothes, Jon," said Rose definitely. "Sally put out something of her father's for you... You're soaked to the skin."

Jonathan thought ruefully of his discarded blue flannel coat, his new, once white trousers, coat, grimed. He said, "My ice cream pants shrank. I'd look swell in the Senator's, wouldn't I?"

"Larry can send across to his house and get some of Phil's clothes. One of the servants went over and brought some back for him," she said. "I'll tell him."

"Wait a minute..." He laid his hand on her wrist. He said, "I haven't any words to tell you what I think of you."

She did not answer but looking at him she found her regard so deeply plunged in his own that it seemed as if she could never look away. But at last she did, and ran from him, down the corridor, down the stairs, her heart singing. It had been a horrible experience, and she realized dimly that they had not heard the last of it by a good deal. She was sensitive to impressions and she knew without any need of analyzing it that she and Jonathan had made an enemy in Larry Dexter. Then there was Millie to think of, and her family. But Rose was happier than she had ever been in all her life before. It was as if, wordlessly, she and Jonathan had reached an understanding. They had been through a major experience together, one which might have ended in catastrophe for them all. And she had realized as the little boat shuddered and drove through the sickening welter of water, that if disaster was to come to them, it must come to them together.

The arrangements were made. Larry, sullen and silent, went over himself to his house to get dry things for his rescuer, the Downings were reached by telephone and after their first horrified reaction proved sensible enough, promising to meet Jonathan at the hospital and agreeing that trained care and quiet were indicated for their daughter; the men returned from the mainland and Millie, dry, drowsy under a sedative, wrapped in warm robes and blankets, was carried to the boat and thence to the mainland and the car.

They took one of the Sutton cars, the chauffeur driving. Jonathan and Rose supporting Millie in the back seat. Sally and her mother remained with Larry. "Poor boy, he's so shaken," said Mrs. Sutton sympathetically, until his father and brother returned. Later, someone would drive Jonathan's car back to town for him, together with his and Rose's belongings.

"I should have taken a dinner coat," he remarked suddenly as the car sped along the winding road, "then I wouldn't have had to appear in borrowed plumage."

At the hospital Mr. and Mrs. Downing met them, grateful almost to hysteria but controlling themselves well enough. Nurses waited. Millie was put to bed, her mother sat there in the room beside her, her hand on the slender wrist, her eyes fixed on the small white face as if she could not imprint it deeply enough in her mind and heart. Downstairs in the waiting room Jonathan and Rose talked with the girl's father.

"If I were you," advised Jonathan, a little awkwardly, "I would not be hard on her—when she's well, I mean. Better wipe the slate clean. She's had her lesson, a pretty severe one... She'll never see you Dexter again, except in the ordinary way of existence... I can guarantee you that."

"Anything you say goes, Doctor," agreed the older man, frowning. "I can't believe it yet. We—we've come so close to losing her... It will be a horror that will stay with us always..."

He was silent a moment and then said brokenly, "I don't know how we can thank you—both—"

They assured him that they had done nothing and apparently a hindrance local paper agreed with them because by night Larry had recovered sufficiently to see reporters. The next day, alone in his office, reading the headlines, Jonathan tossed the paper aside with a scowl, half amusement and half anger. Not that he wanted any praise, although it seemed to him that surely Rose should have been the heroine of the occasion. But while both he and she received editorials pats on the back, it was Larry's metamorphosed behavior which came in for the heavy print and the admiring exclamations. It appeared that Larry, seeing rescue not far off and fearing that his weight in the boat added greatly to the danger, had jumped into the river, facing possible death in order that Millie Downing might

E. Waldron, and read by Betty Hamme; class prophecy, Dora Waldron; presentations of humorous gifts to the class members, Muriel Sheldon, Chester Bair and Louis Lupkin.

The fourth and final act showed the marriage ceremony of the first member of the class of 1937 to wed. A promise having been made at the final meeting of the class, the first to marry invited all class members to the ceremony, which occurred in June of 1940. The participants in this church scene were: Minister, Louis Tomlinson; bride, Muriel Sheldon; groom, George DeLong. At the conclusion of the ceremony, as a finale to the evening program, the graduates sang "The Love Bug Will Bite You If You Don't Watch Out."

Miss Marian E. Harrison and Thomas A. Coles, class advisors, were remembered by the class through presentation of gifts. These were bestowed on behalf of the class by Chester Bair, and were accepted for the two in well-chosen words by Mr. Coles. Gifts of appreciation for aid given to the class were also given to Miss Gladys Hewitt and Miss Olive Winslow.

Introduced by the class president, Charles S. Locke, who represented Washington Camp, 789, P. O. S. of A., presented to Mr. Bair a booklet for each member of the class. These booklets contained copies of the Constitution of the United States of America, the Declaration of Independence, and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Mr. Locke told of the 90 years of service of this order, and of the work of Washington Camp since its organization. In presenting the booklets to the class Mr. Locke said, "May they guide and direct you in the years to come."

The class officers are: President, Chester Bair; vice-president, Berenice Bruner; secretary, Muriel Sheldon; treasurer, Carmen Mignoni.

The motto chosen by the class of 1937 is "Give the best in return for success." The class colors are blue and silver, and the flower the daffodil. The class roll is inclusive of:

THE CAR OF DOUBLE LIFE—the big, roomy Packard 120, a straight eight which has both Packard's long mechanical life and Packard's enduring identity. Easy to buy—economical to operate.

The Packard 120 Touring Sedan for five passengers

IF YOU have been reading the papers, you probably know that labor and material costs have taken a big jump.

Packard, like every other motor car manufacturer, must eventually face the problem of these increased costs. Frankly, we do not believe the present low prices of our cars can be maintained another season.

So—we strongly urge you not to put off driving the car that represents the biggest motor car value America has ever seen... the PACKARD 120.

The Packard 120 is a big, luxurious car. It is a straight eight—an unusually spirited straight eight of 120 horsepower. In appearance, in luxury, in riding and handling qualities, in enduring identity and long mechanical life, it is a real Packard.

We honestly believe you will not find a car to compare with it at anywhere near its price.

So, come in now, drive the car and get the facts. You'll find the Packard 120 is easy to buy. And you will find that it costs less than you would believe possible to operate and maintain.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

PACKARD 120

Here's what a Packard 120, as illustrated, costs here in Bristol

$1282

Delivered price, including all standard equipment, and state and local taxes.

If you, like many others, prefer to purchase your Packard out of income, the necessary down payment on the car is only $422. Your old car, if of average value, will cover or exceed this amount, leaving monthly payments no higher than $43.86.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1937,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—It must be love—the way Mary Astor had the jitters all morning on the "Hurricane" set, while Husband Manuel del Campo was having his tonsils removed by Dr. Joel Pressman. Auburn-haired Mary ran for the phone between almost every take and sacrificed her noon hour to visit the new groom. Their romance seems to be an ideal one, and Hollywood is wishing Mary all the luck in the world.

Many an actor has a well-trained memory, but Harold Lloyd really amazes. You can take a deck of cards and deal them out, one on top the other. Reverse the process and he can call each card before it comes. Or, you can write three lines of numbers, containing as many as 11 numbers in a line. Let him see them, hide the paper and he can call the numbers in the order they appear. Recently, he was able to do this 72 hours after seeing the paper.

The autograph racketeers are at work again. Coming out of a Beverly Hills preview, Tala Birell unknowingly signed a blank check, which was cashed Saturday morning to the tune of $309. The star identified the signature because it was with an indelible pencil. She'll stand half the loss, the bank the rest.

Hereafter, she'll use a code signature on her checks.

The new Winchell-Bernie picture will be made in 1938. Walter wants it known that, no matter how big you are, you can't succeed without the goodwill of the newspaper people... As many as five more "TVA yardsticks" will be proposed by the administration, according to report. These will be located strategically throughout the land to show the citizenry how it is being gyped by the light and power companies.

Of course, these "TVAs" will be built with taxpayers' money, will not pay interest on the investment and will pay no taxes. Fifteen per cent of the gross income of utilities now goes for taxes, more than fifty per cent of gross income for interest on investment.

Just as fair a comparison could be made by the government if it invested $25,000,000 in a department store in a city of 50,000 population, paid no taxes and no interest on investment, sold merchandise for 25% less than other stores. And now that this has been mentioned, look for a New Deal project along some such line. Electricity is being used as the starting point because demagogic politicians have devoted long years to educating the public as to the inherent wickedness of the utilities, thus making it easier to transfer this business from private ownership into the hands of the politicians.

However, the only yardstick necessary to prove the difference between privately-operated and publicly-operated public services is the post office department. While almost every privately owned utility in the Nation reduced rates during the depression, the cost of a two-cent postage stamp went up fifty per cent during the same period.

Russia, as it was formerly known, is brought much nearer to the United States. Hamm.

A Soviet plane expedition, headed by a doctor with the good old Russian name of Otto J. Schmidt, landed eleven men only a dozen miles from the North Pole, where Russia plans establishment of a base in preparation for a proposed Moscow-San Francisco air route over the top of the globe. Four of the men are to remain at the Pole for one year.

This is progress, and how are you going to stop it? However, the mere thought of an air line bringing our Pacific Coast within three days' flight of Moscow will give the more apprehensive the jitters.

Slowly but inexorably the earth is being conquered by the heavier-than-air machine. Disaster nor apparently insurmountable obstacles can long postpone the day when every capital upon the globe will be linked by air. And but for the fear of the mass slaughter of civilians that will thus be made possible in time of war, there would be cause for great rejoicing.

Were civilization advanced to the point that dictators were regarded everywhere as the enemies of mankind, there would be no cause for fear of war.

New Road Map Has A Motorists' Timetable

If you are one of those methodical motorists who like to get places on schedule rather than an hour earlier or later, you will doubtless be interested in the new 1937 road maps just issued to local Richfield dealers. In addition to complete, up-to-date information on road surface conditions, they feature a "mileage and timetable" which shows not only distance between principal cities but driving time as well.

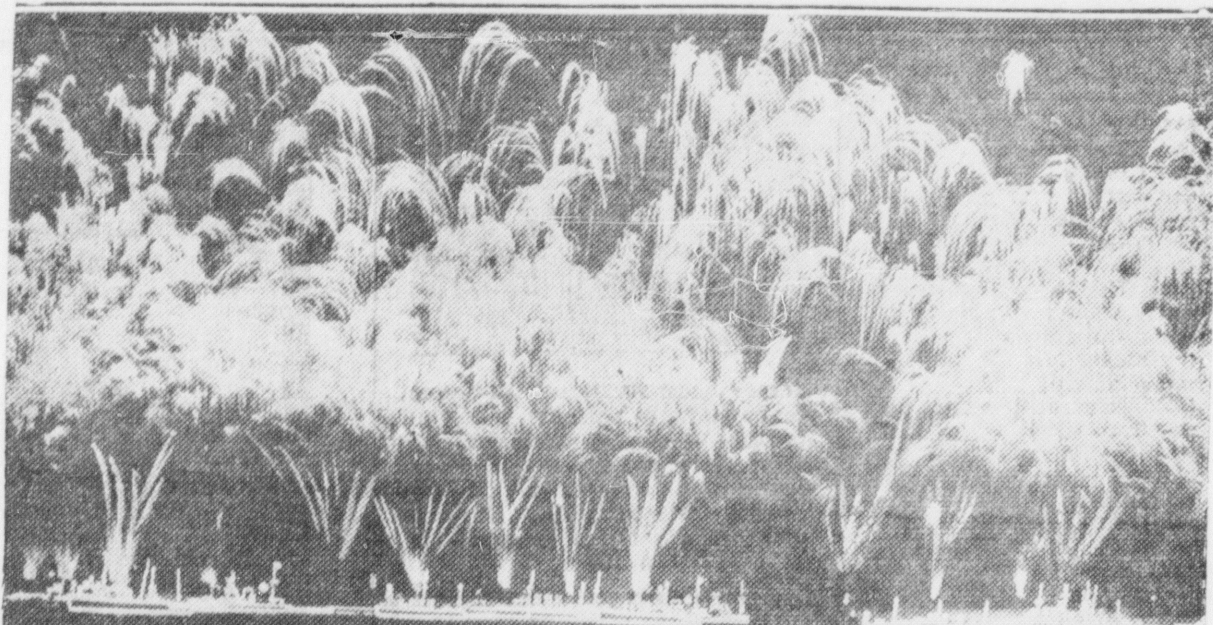

Embodying all the usual features of road maps, plus some fine new ones, they include such information as the important state traffic laws and speed limits throughout the East, a complete index with population figures for cities and towns, colorful data of historical and geographical interest—with a special map to point them out.

Stomach Sufferer "Double Checks" Acids and Wins Relief

No wonder KALIN Antacid Powder is so popular—it works too well. First, it gives the delicate lining or membrane of the stomach a protective coating, which keeps the over-active acids from aggravating the irritated tissue. Then it neutralizes the excess acids and thus aids in restoring normal digestion. If you suffer from your stomach, heartburn, indigestion, gas, cramps, acid indigestion or other disorders caused by hyperacidity, over-indulgence or faulty diet, get a package of KALIN from your druggist today. The first dose should give you relief. Generous size package only 75c. Your money back if you don't agree it does more for your sick stomach than any thing you ever used. Ask for genuine KALIN. ### SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

THE bride is apt to find marketing, what and how much of various foods to buy, her hardest job. Lower prices for vegetables, lower prices for lamb and fish, a lengthening list of fruits and lower prices for butter and eggs await the early June bride's first marketing. Of course the first arrival of peaches, melons or new variety of berry are high but each week sees a longer list and lower prices. Carrots are the only really high priced vegetable left. Beets cost but two-thirds of last week's price. New potatoes are more plentiful and lower. Seasonable foods make up the following menus.

Low Cost Dinner

Veal Pot Pie with Vegetables
Potatoes Onions Peas
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Pudding with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Beef Pan Browned Potatoes
Green Beans

Strawberry Ice Cream Cookies

Very Special Dinner

Roast Lamb Sautéed Bananas
Boiled Rice Asparagus

COOL AND CONVENIENT KITCHENS, OBJECTIVES OF ALL HOME-MAKERS

By Edna A. Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)

Cool and convenient are the two adjectives which most homemakers want to be able to use when describing their kitchens this summer.

If you are not using the wood or coal range this summer, clean it inside and outside, and then grease it with unsalted fat or a crude oil, rubbing it in well, and then wipe it off.

The top of the stove then can be covered with brown paper, oil cloth, or even composition board can be put to fit the top of the stove and enamel. This will give additional working surface for the preparation of food. Ovens of unused stoves provide convenient storage space for large utensils.

Oil stoves can be moved easily and often the most convenient place is beside the wood or coal range where the top of the range can be used for work space. If it is necessary to move the oil stove occasionally, try putting it on a rack or frame with casters; thus it will be easily moved and the stove will be raised to a more convenient working height.

You may have some utensils which are of the right size to fit over the burners and if so, use these. When the flame extends beyond the edge of the pan, it does not help to cook the food but it adds heat to the kitchen. Duplicate or triplicate sauce pans to use over one burner and a steam pressure cooker are good warm weather utensils. Everyone has utensils which are used during the summer, such as canning equipment and ice cream freezer. Have these clean and in convenient places all ready to use.

Troper ventilation is important during the summer months. A circulation of air makes one feel cooler for there is more evaporation from the body surface in the presence of moving air than in the presence of still air. This movement of air can be secured through full-length screens and cross-ventilation of windows. The kitchen and the bedrooms should have full-length screens. If they are not available, mosquito netting may be used.

Screens may be fastened with metal buttons which enable one to remove them easily when washing windows. If adjustable screens are used bugs may find their way in between the screen and the window. To help prevent this put a strip of window felt on the top and bottom of the screen, fastening it on both ends.

Opened attic windows will help to create circulation of air and keep the house cooler. Keep the house ready to receive any stray breezes which come along and if nature does not supply one, one can easily be made with an electric fan.

TIMELY RECIPES YOU WILL WANT TO TRY

Graham Cracker Ice Cream

One pint single cream, not whipped; one-half cup sifted sugar, one-half teaspoon each of vanilla and almond extract and one cup graham cracker crumbs.

Mix in order given. Pour in tray of automatic refrigerator and allow at least four hours for freezing. Serves six and is a simple, yet delicious hurry-up dessert for warm days.

Macaroni Peppers

Mix one-half cup cooked macaroni with one-half cup grated cheese, two-thirds cup stewed or fresh tomatoes, one-half cup soft bread crumbs, salt, pepper, paprika and one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire or other sauce.

Pack into green peppers, from which fibers and seeds have been removed. Cover with one can hot tomato soup, diluted with an equal amount of hot water and bake 30 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees F.

With the side orders of a light salad and pudding, this will provide a complete meal, particularly if you bake a few quick biscuits while this dish is in the oven.

Sauerkraut Roll

Lovers of sauerkraut may like to try this novel recipe. Incidentally, the lowly kraut is a real health food, for it is rich in lime, potash and phosphorus; also in iron and in calcium, the bone-building substance.

Take two or three pounds of round steak, cut three-fourths of an inch thick. Sprinkle salt and pepper over it. Cover with thin slices of bacon. Place as much kraut on the meat as possible and roll up and fasten with skewers. Put in a covered roasting pan with a pint of water and bake one hour in a moderate oven.

Then thicken the liquid with flour. Garnish with lemon slices.

AUTHORITIES DECLARE ICE CREAM IS A HEALTH, NOT A FAT, FOOD

Contrary to the notion that ice cream is a fat-producing food is the fact that it is a dairy product, hence a health food product.

The principal ingredients of commercial ice cream are cream, milk, sugar, and flavoring materials. It contains less butter fat than coffee cream, but it is high in other dairy solids, thus embodying the healthful properties of milk and cream. These in a large measure offset the fat-producing nature in the ice cream and when eaten in moderation are of real medicinal and health value.

Ice cream, often considered a strictly American dessert, is gaining in popularity all over Europe. Professor J. Hoffman C.B. Department of Technology in the Ohio State University observed after completing a tour of many European countries.

The delicacy may be ice cream in America, England and Scotland, but other countries know it by different names, though its popularity is universal.

In Austria, it is "gefroren." Italians call it "gelati." Hollanders term it "romajis." In France it is known as "vanilla glaze." Germany has "raume eis," while the Greek word for ice cream is "tagoto."

DUPLICATE "AH BOWS"

PORTLAND, Ore. — (INS) — The name, Ah Bow, must be the Chinese equivalent of the American "Smith."

Detectives raided a gambling den here and arrested a Chinese who gave his name as "Ah Bow."

A short while later the same officers raided another gambling house and arrested another Chinese. His name was "Ah Bow," too.

The judge looked at both of them, at the evidence against them, and said: "Ah Bow(t) $25 each."

ARE YOU EXPECTING A BABY?

Perhaps it is your first experience and no doubt you are inclined to worry. There really is nothing to worry about; the important thing to do is to place yourself under the care of your family medical doctor at once.

Why? There are many reasons, but let us mention the important ones. He will see you at regular intervals to examine your urine, blood pressure, heart, lungs and vital organs. These visits to his office are not money thrown away; they are the best investment you can make in health. He alone can detect the dangers connected with pregnancy. Don't depend on what Mrs. X, who has had ten babies, tells you. Each pregnancy is different and each carries its own potential dangers. If you wait until trouble begins it may be too late and even skilled medical care may not save your life.

The kidneys carry a heavy load during pregnancy. Take a sample of urine with you each time you visit the doctor's office. He will want to examine it to determine the condition of your kidneys.

Bleeding, or what you may call menstruation, is never normal during pregnancy. See your doctor at once.

Severe continued headaches and vomiting, pain in the stomach with indigestion, marked swelling of the legs or ankles and falling vision are all danger signals. You must see your doctor at once. Let him be the judge and then follow his advice carefully.

He will also measure your pelvis so that he can plan in advance how he will have to deliver the baby. Repeated visits to his office will cause you to become better acquainted with your doctor. This develops your confidence and trust in him.

After the baby arrives he will tell you how to care for yourself and the new member of your family. This promotes health and happiness.

Always ask your medical doctor for any advice. His years of training make him alone capable of informing you correctly.

SCIARRA TO FACE ANOTHER TOP-NOTCHER

Despite his set-back of last week, Tally Sciarras will face another top-notch fighter of the amateur ranks next Monday night when he crosses punches with Joe Diodati, of the Daguerre club, in one of the ten bouts Matchmaker Sammy Moffo has arranged for the St. Ann's arena with the sanction of the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U.

Tally was decisively beaten by Herman Matteo last Monday night. He carried the first round when he got under Matteo's right and kept jabbing in the face. However, the Philadelphia rallied to take the final two sessions and with them the decision. Undaunted by this, Sciarras asked for the bout with Diodati and feels confident that he will emerge the victor.

The Bristol fans will also see a return bout between William "Hokey" Leighton and James Lefferts. Lefferts beat the Croydonite in the opening show of the outdoor season but it was a close fight in which the decision could have been given either fighter. Leighton surprised the fans with a one-round knockout of his opponent, Al Piazza, last week.

Moffo has also signed Mario Loungo, Germantown Boys' Club, who for several years held the A. A. U. 147 pound championship. Loungo in his only appearance here two years ago flattened his foe in the second round after toying with him in the first. The fans of this vicinity clamored for more of him but he was busy fighting in other cities. Now he comes back to Bristol Monday night to meet William Floyd, Wharton A. C.

Tickets for the show can be secured by telephoning the St. Ann's clubhouse, 9934, and requesting a choice seat.

LEGION JUNIORS TO OPEN BALL SEASON TOMORROW

The junior baseball team of the Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, will open up its season tomorrow afternoon by playing the strong Perkaskie Junior team which defeated Morrisville Juniors on Wednesday by the score of 16 to 5.

Manager Hems wishes all boys who are members of the team to meet at the Legion Home tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock. Bristol will meet Doylestown, Wednesday; Newtown, Friday; and Quakertown, Saturday, June 12, at home.

Perkaskie has declared a holiday on Saturday by hiring a band and having its Sons of the Legion Bugle Corps turn out to see Bristol play. Perkaskie is one of the best supporters of Legion Junior Baseball in the State. They always give the fans a good brand of baseball.

Bristol team will be: Bauroth, 3b; Van Lente, 2b; Johnson, ss; Dick LaPollo or Bergman, rf; Barbetta, 1b; Tomlinson, cf; Palumbo or Grimes, lf; Ludwig will do the catching. Spencer for extra infielder. The pitching will be taken care of by Dick, Leinheiser, Betz and Petrick.

CASE OF LUCK

NELSON, B. C.—(INS)—Driving a pick into a box of dynamite is an experience Jim Stewart does not want to repeat.

Stewart was at work in a gravel pit, when his pick drove into a hard object. Investigation revealed the case of explosive. The box bore the date of 1910, and apparently it had been buried 27 years before by a crew of Great Northern Railway workers.

Stewart would not take a chance on it not exploding the second time.

ROHM & HAAS NINE BATTLES ZINC MEN TO TIE

The Rohm and Haas nine and the Superior Zinc team battled to a no-decision last evening on Leedom's field. After the final runner was put out the score stood at 4-4.

Until the fourth the zinc workers held a 4-1 edge and were sailing to victory. But "Reds" Cummons lost his control after Long committed an error so that before the third batter was retired three runs had crossed and the count knotted. Two hits was all the chemical workers could muster before that fatal frame.

Bristol went ahead in the fourth, 3-2. Bauroth beat out a neat bunt down the third base line that caught the New Hope infield dozing. Kalencki followed by beating out a hit to Skillman. The double steal signal was flashed and both Bauroth and Kalencki moved up to third and second respectively as it worked. Bauroth crossed the plate on LaPollo's foul fly behind third that Wood took then, fell after making the catch.

The last tally came in the fifth to sew up the game. Gallagher walked, and took second on Evans' wild throw
